STRAWBERRY SEEDS.

Seedling Plants of Alpine Strawberries (Quatre-saisons varieties) give better results than growing from runners. The seed should be sown in a shady position in the open ground in May. As soon as the young plants are sufficiently large to transplant they should be planted out in beds at a distance of 15 inches from plant to plant. These will commence to fruit when a year old.

Per Packet

Alpine, Improved Large Red	Very free of robust habit, the fruits frequently measure 2 inches in length, bright red	1/6
Large-fruited Perpetual St. Joseph	An abundant cropper good size, dark red, fine quality	1/6
